ITEM I

Cross cultural marriages in Uganda are becoming common than ever before. Your brother, a lady from an ethnic community which is quite different from yours and therefore has half-caste children (cross cultural blood). During holidays, you stay in your brother's house, interact with his wife and children. Your brother together with his wife and your parents have tasked you to develop very strong cultural values in those children.

Task

Identify your ethnic group and that of your brother's wife and explain the steps that you will take to develop strong cultural values in those children.

ITEM 2

In one of the sub-county meetings in one of the districts in Uganda, one of the councilors in his submission mentioned that the council hall they were in was built by the colonialist, he also went ahead to mention many more achievements of the colonial rule and emphasized that they are still helping Ugandans in many ways. However, this submission faced a lot of opposition from almost ninety percent of the council members, they argued that the colonialists did completely no good for Uganda apart from the misery and suffering they put on Ugandans. This left the council divided. Others asking themselves why the colonialist would even come to Uganda in the first place something that has reached the public domain and left it in total confusion.

This has prompted the sub-county chief to organize a public workshop where masses are expected to sensitized about the reasons for the coming of Europeans and how their activities have continued to impact on the Ugandans. You have been approached by the chief to be part of this workshop as one of the speakers.

Task.

Considering the factors that facilitated the coming of colonialists and how their stay changed East Africa, Uganda inclusive, prepare a clear report that you will use to sensitize the masses about:

a) Reasons why the European colonialists picked interest in coming to Uganda.
b) With relevant examples how their activities have affected the peoples of East Africa.

WISHING YOU MERY CHRISMAS AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR 2026.
